

GIRL ON TOP

Congratulations to Lesley Jeffs, director and company secretary of 1A Instalec Ltd, who has won the Bedfordshire Business Woman of the Year Award.

Having worked there for eight years, she has seen the electrical engineers and contracting company grow from being just Paul (now the md, once the sole electrician) and herself to 14 employees. Lesley won the award due to her organised methods and professionalism within the business, as well as co-ordinating the big move to their new office premises. Not only has her successful organisational skills enabled her to win an award, she feels that it is something that has also helped the company expand over the years; so read and learn!

"I think being organised is definitely the key to any business," says Lesley. "we have always been very meticulous about our paperwork and our admin. If we go out and do a quote, then we will endeavour to have the typed quote on the fax to them the same day. Our men always turn up uniformed and in sign written/clean vehicles. If people phone our offices they will always find the switchboard manned, which is very important."

It's always lovely for us at PE to hear about what our readers have been up to, especially when it's a young lady, as lets face it guys we do not hear enough about the women in our industry. PE now wants to hear from any female electricians out there, so give us a shout and tell us what you are up to.
